Relax, Enjoy Yourself

1. Don't be a "bath speedster". Don't jump in and jump right out again. Remember the bath tub is the best place in which to relax because the buoyant qualities of the water support the body. So take it easy and get some benefit from your bath hour! For a supremely relaxing and invigorating bath, pour a handful of milk bath powder into the tub and allow the water faucet to run full force, producing a thick, white foam for you to relax in.

2. Sit in the tub the right way, relaxed, with straight head and back. Tensing your neck and jutting your chin forward will give you a dowager's hump in no time at all. If you're afraid of wetting your hair, wear a bathing cap or put a rubber cushion under your head.

3. Wash your back, reaching as far down as possible. This strengthens the pectoral muscles and keeps the upper part of the torso uplifted and young.

4. Pour a sweet-scented bath oil in your tub. It will make your bath a fragrant pool and provide valuable oils for your skin.

5. Give your face a treatment while you're in the bath, by wearing a facial masque, or by smoothing on a cream and leaving it on while you bathe to give your face a complete "rest cure".

6. Rub Vigorously Combine your bath with your deodorizing routine by following it with a deodorant cream if your skin is dry, or a lotion if it is oily.

7. Rub vigorously when you dry yourself to stimulate circulation and help yourself to a streamlined figure. Don't pat gently, or you're wasting a valuable opportunity for a good rubdown and exercise. For friction after your bath, rub down with an exhilarating cologne and finish with dusting powder.

If you would like to have a series of exercises that can be performed while you're bathing, you can receive it by writing to Helena Rubinstein in care of this paper. Madeline Rubinstein will also personally answer questions on care of the skin.

HELICS OF PAST

The epaulettes and shoulder marks now worn by U. S. Naval Officers survive from olden days when fighting seamen wore metal plates on their shoulders to protect them from saber cuts.

Twenty-five theatres in London were open in October this year, compared with three during the same months last year.

HAS HUGE AUDIENCE

The U. S. Navy is probably the world's largest single distributor of motion pictures. It maintains 2,000 films in constant circulation and has a nightly attendance of 100,000 seamen. The Navy requires between 300 and 400 new films each year, or practically the entire output of all of the major studios. The films are leased for a period of four years and then returned to the studios. When you witness slow motion pictures of your favorite athletes in action you are indebted to the U. S. Navy for the necessity of studying the flight of projectiles led the Navy to develop the camera that makes possible slow motion movies.
